AUXILIO, Inc. Appoints New Executive Vice President of Operations

Mission Viejo, Calif. (May 17, 2010) – AUXILIO, Inc. (AUXO.OB), the pioneer in managed print services (MPS) for the health care industry, today announced that Scott Mumby has been appointed to Executive Vice President.

Mr. Mumby is a proven strategic leader, with 15 years of experience implementing and managing growth and transformation initiatives for organizations ranging in size from mid-market to Fortune 500. Mr. Mumby joins AUXILIO from Sealane Consulting, LLC, where he provided strategic consulting services for select premiere Fortune 500 clients. Previous to Sealane Consulting, Mr. Mumby was a principal consultant with Pricewaterhouse Coopers focused on the alignment of business strategy, organizational structure and corporate leadership to achieve key business goals.

In his new position, Mr. Mumby will be responsible for managing and growing in-hospital operations staff, service offering improvement strategies, and corporate development and will report to AUXILIO's Chief Executive Officer Joseph J. Flynn.

"We are pleased to welcome Scott to the team," said Mr. Flynn. "His hands-on management of strategic initiatives, organizational growth and customer relations that span a full range of corporate functions, including marketing, IT, human resources, finance and enterprise learning, will help us build on the progress of our core managed print services and further position our company for growth and success."

"As the first in the market and the only health care exclusive, vendor independent managed print services company in the nation, AUXILIO has a successful track record and is well-poised to succeed in this burgeoning industry," said Mr. Mumby. "I look forward to drawing on my expertise in developing transformational strategies and initiatives that will drive long-term growth and success for this company."
